4. ROE is calculated as the return on assets multiplied by the equity multiplier. The equity multiplier, defined as total assets divided by common equity, is a measure of debt utilization; the more debt a firm uses, the lower its equity, and the higher the equity multiplier. Thus, using more debt will increase the equity multiplier, resulting in a higher ROE.
5. Return on investment relates to income earned on the capital invested in the business firm. Unsatisfactory ROI could possibly lead to withdrawal of capital provided by investors which could result to the demise of the business.
6. Refer to pages 247, 248 and 252.
7. Example: If a company defers or postpones a regular maintenance and repair activity with a view of reducing current year's expenses. Such act may in the long-run bring about unfavorable outcomes such as delays in production, poor product quality, etc.
8. Liquidity is the firm's ability to meet cash needs as they arise such as payment of accounts payable, bank loans and operating expenses. Liquidity is crucial to the firm's survival because if the company is unable to fulfill its obligations, operations could be disrupted that could result to its closure.
9. Short-term lenders – liquidity because their concern is with the firm's ability to pay short-term obligations as they come due.

Long-term lenders – leverage because they are concerned with the relationship of debt to total assets. They also will examine profitability to insure that interest payments can be made.

Stockholders – profitability because they are concerned with the secondary consideration given to debt utilization, liquidity and other ratios. Since stockholders are the ultimate owners of the firm, they are primarily concerned with profits or the return on their investment.
10. If the accounts receivable turnover ratio is decreasing, accounts receivable will be on the books for a longer period of time. This means the average collection period will be increasing.
